

The introduction of TCMT 612: Decision Making

Prepare yourself to make decisions under different scenarios.

Think through complicated situations, separate facts from assumptions.

Sharpen your focus on what really matters and avoid distractions.

First, you will understand what stop you and others from making rational decisions.

Unwind taggled wires of the decision making process

Add key elements

Rewire the logics in a logical manner

You will test the new process with the help of your classmates, TA and me, with your friends and family, as well as with your colleagues at work.

Set a deadline for data analysis

Good decision makers differentiate themselves from averaged peers by being prepared to make informed decisions under reasonable uncertainty and take actions accordingly to create an advantage.
